

Young blood on the tracks Issue 5 of 'Engaged' magazine is out now on video, and showcases ten short films by young British film-makers. It's an exemplary issue that's learnt the lesson of London's burgeoning film-club scene: keep it fun. So as well as presenting the artists' work, we get inter-edited interviews with all the directors, all wrapped up with highly professional graphics. As for the films, there is a diversity of ambition and resources here, but it's all provocative and engaging, whether it's the pieces by Andrew Kötting and Jamie Thraves, Run Wrake's animated 'Jukebox', Susannah Gent's soberingly surreal 'Black Bag' or Thomas Q Napper's stylish, amusing 'Pineal Mouse'. And topping it all, two works by the underground's master of the succinct, Vito Rocco. (Nick Bradshaw) Available on subscription from Engaged, 334a Kennington Rd, SE11 (0171 735 3123). Price £10.
