

Scenario A: Timeless materials such as "the organic" and "the social" (which seems to be immaterial) will gain even greater importance in the future. Maybe because we want to dissolve the limits to the inorganic.

Annotation: Making predictions on the basis of a fragmentary knowledge and to desire that these predictions become an authority seems to be the core-process of each speculation. At stake of every speculation is the suggestion of power, sometimes quietly and sometimes pushy.